The carda were tout and averyhody thought the weilding would have been over and forgotten by this line, but up to sthin writing their, two that our readers may understand the true state of affairs we will explain to some extent.

Miss Lizzla Young Morson la occ

of the prestlest and most accom plished young ladles in Southern Kentucky, and is just nlucteen years ot age, buil of fun and romance, and It is not strange that 'half the boys to liopkins and edjahiling countles should be in love with her. She le the youngest daughter of Mr. Jua. 6 Morton, the wealthiest citizen of his Ressellville is to have a planing county, and is a sister or Mrs. Bendricks who was claudostlucty, married five years ago, afterwards di vorced, and last apring again married to the same man, and is a cousin to Zeno F. Yorng, editor of the Times. Almost from her childhood she had been in love with Neville ifoleman, handsuere, but rather wild young fellow, a son of a wealthy druggist of Madlaouville. . As the approached womanhood she because engaged to iloleman, and all went well untit tbree years ago, when Joel D. Me-Pherson, a non ot Col. Jno. W. Me-Pherson, of thlacity, met, loved and began to pay his attentions to the Madlsouville belle, who was then a chool girl. Illa sult was auccessful iloleman lost his place in har affec tions, Joel became her accepted soltar and matters have confineed thus natil the cards announcing their marriage were issued. Holeman, though rejected, has continued to love and risit the fickle object of his adoration, hat when the day was set for her to marry McPherson, hope died out in ble heart and the darkness of despair settled upon his sout.

But now comes the sensational par
